Sweetheart-

Tonight the Community Center wasn't opened, so I thought I'd have one night in which I could fully relax; but no -

Fred is leaving 6:00 tomorrow morning, so I sat around until he came & bid him a very fond farewell! The kid is no "slosh" on kissing; but he still has a lot to learn - from you! Also, since this is UK's & Fred's last night together, I did let him use my Chanel #5, my girdle, my shoes, coat, scarf, gloves & earrings. Now, however, I must admit that she looked stunning!

Boy, I was thrilled today to receive 3 V-mails from you dated 12/13, 12/19 & 12/24. Imagine, the last two were in their original form (not photographed) & they reached me in 9 days. I'm sure not complaining. Your news was pretty good today, if you don't consider the lives lost -

to regain the territory - know the Germans!

Glad you finally received my wire. I shall try & send you another one tomorrow!

I lost the "winding
appantus" on my watch.
Dad is wearing Mont's watch, so he gave me his to wear! As long as it keeps time that's all I care about!

After nap hr. one of the kids awoke with a rash & a slight temperature.
I got scared of scarlet fever & isolated him. Gee, I sure hope we don't have any epidemics in my school they to give a grad^{making} medical inspection & hope my ass'ts do, too! Told the parent not to bring him in the a.m. unless he gets a statement from a Dr. that the kid's okay!

Mont called this minute He's just fine - been trying to call for 2 wks - was rather anxious about you as we all are - were they're "pulling out" around the 7th 8th!

I'm loving you every minute
Edith
